

Fun Times in the Gymnasium at Annual “Read and Romp Day”

It was very busy in the gymnasiums on Monday, March 8, as students in the Early Childhood division enjoyed “Read and Romp Day.” This wonderful event is a collaborative effort between the Physical Education department and the library. Students come to the gymnasiums where they rotate to ten different stations. At each station they are read a book and participate in a corresponding physical activity.

This year students did the chicken dance, decorated an elephant tree, matched money to the correct penny bank, learned sign language, played a game called “crocodiles in the river,” did yoga, planted flowers in a pretend garden, had a matching relay to place items on a paper hedgehog, and ate a snack in the pig room. The books used for these activities are included on another document on my physical education web page.

Thank you to all the many parents, grandparents, middle school students, and teachers who assisted with this special event. Thanks, also, to Mrs. Wagner, Early Childhood librarian, for all the great books. It was a great day.

Please visit the link below for more pictures of Read and Romp Day.

<http://picasaweb.google.com/kathywagnerpe>

Left picture: A parent reads “Crocodaddy,” showing his crocodile eyes.

Right picture: Mrs. Mattix, E. C. Librarian and Mrs. Wagner, E. C. Physical Education Instructor.